Ms. Gomez,

We are from Towards Justice, a non-profit legal advocacy organization that represents workers. As we understand it, Benzor Vidal is a respondent in a case recently filed with AAA by his former employer seeking to collect, among other things, a so-called "breach fee" for his alleged breach of an employment contract.

We are deeply concerned about the employer practices underlying this case. Similar practices have given rise to litigation around the country. In fact, the New York Attorney General has engaged in enforcement against and entered into a settlement with an employer engaging in far less predatory practices than we understand Mr. Vidal's former employer to be engaging in here. We are also concerned and troubled by AAA's administration of an arbitration that could be used to facilitate an employer's illegal trafficking scheme.

We have not yet had the time to fully review Mr. Vidal's case or to decide whether we can represent him, but we understand that he has a deadline fast approaching, perhaps as early as August 4. We are inquiring on behalf of Mr. Vidal whether AAA would grant him a 60-day extension of his deadline to respond to ensure that we can review his case, and that if we cannot represent him, he has time to find another attorney as opposed to facing a potentially crippling judgment without the benefit of representation.

Thanks so much for your attention to this matter.

Best,

David
